You'll find your choices and experiences drastically differ, depending on your class. * The PS4 and Xbox One versions of the game support Cross-Play with the PS Vita version of the game, but there are no plans for Cross-Play with Xbox 360, PC, or PS3 at this time. ISI, Turkey — A villa for families — a market, a school, a train station — all built with loads of EU money, not ours. Not everybody is happy about this path Turkey has been taking. Thirteen years ago, Turkey was on a similar path — a financially unstable and politically tangled fairy tale — with half a dozen EU divisions hanging over the country. Now, Turkey is still financially strained, still in need of reform. But today, with a deal with the EU, a bill for the promise it will pay, and no guarantee of final membership, Turkey's euphoria is real and wide. Even as it holds a referendum on staying in the EU, Turkey is not only asking for a new investment partnership, but consolidating itself as an EU country — with key freedoms, free trade, access to the internal market, and a say in European Parliament decisions. The hope for prosperity is what is motivating Turks to vote "Yes." What if Turkey joins in 2017? What will become of the E.U.? "We want to be a part of Europe," says the owner of a small cafes that come to life in the evenings. "We are Europeans and we want Europe to be a part of us." "I'm 82 years old," he says, sitting on his terrace, overlooking orange fields. "My mother and father came to this peninsula 60 years ago. When my children go to school here, I have a granddaughter." He has seen the promise of the country thrive. "I cannot have this hope destroyed." His cafe, he says, "can sell coffee, tea, chocolate, yogurt, lemons, olives, and cigarettes." But a Turkish member of parliament complains the brand is disincentivizing Turks to come, as it is the sole Turkish store in town. (A lawmaker from the ruling party has blamed the brand on the "filter" that was introduced to censor the internet.) The owner shrugs and wonders — when people say "everybody is against Turkey," has he ever been against the Turkish flag and the Turkish Parliament? "Yes, of course I am." "I can never be for any other flag." Voting is just one piece of the puzzle. There are other prickly questions
